Humbled-by-grace,

you mean rebuked?

Anyone have any news from the Conference this weekend. Did it "change lifes"?

I suspect that there will be some that will be disappointed in the product because it is hyped up so much.

LOL. Yes I mean rebuked, I hit the wrong key. Since the last email I received, Sam has gotten much nastier. Hear is a not so Christian response to my questions:

"Iâ€™m financially free â€“ praise God!

I spend my time changing lives, not emailing successful Christian entrepreneurs with psycho babble.

As I mentioned in my previous email, save this crap for your inner circle of under achievers.

All the best to you and all the MLM failures you fraternize with.

This past week's MMC in Dallas and we are one body in Christ #

Jack Weinzierl Praise the Lord for the Millionaire Mindset Conference that we just completed in Dallas, TX.

We have been going non stop sense the Gift of Service Wednesday. I cannot begin to communicate everything shared and learned. Our business is going to grow exponentially over the coming years as we just equipped another 130 champions. All I can say as I am beginning to gather all the nuggets received, is wow.... we had 90 people over to our home Saturday evening for a BBQ... Yes, for those who know me, the tears are flowing. God is good.

This was my 4th MMC conference and it was by far the most powerful and we probably had 130 in our worship service this morning. I am not sure how we will top this one next Spring, but the Lord does. We had Messianic Rabbis/brothers and sisters in Christ there and probably dozens of denominations represented with such a sense of unity, it is hard to explain. This is such a powerful focus as it takes up where the church does not go in terms of long term mentoring, accountability and equipping Christian entrepreneurs. I EXPECTED and received something from every Millionaire Mentor and they mostly shared how they are using their wealth as influence to share the gospel throughout the world. Very powerful.

It is so exciting for me to see the army being raised up at Advantage Conferences. Soft hearts, maturing in our faith, with a resolve and commitment level, like nothing I have ever seen.

Let us ALL lead by example from this day forward. Thank you Tim for your vision, passion, sensitivity, tough love, focus, perseverance, generosity, and EXAMPLE.

I still have not touched on 20% of what I could. Make a commitment right now for next Spring's MMC. As importantly, share the good news and the Good News. I cannot even express how moving it is to look around the room and see the folks that are there because you invited them to the 3 Simple Steps. We are simply a tool the Lord is using. Yeh God!....

So, what are you going to do differently this week? What are you going to think differently about this week? How will you work and walk differently this week?

For those candidates out there, finish your 3 Simple Steps at:

Our little friend Wacko Jacko/SoapBoxDad is running at the mouth again. He blathers that their business (scam) is going to grow exponentially. What a laugh! There were 500 reps in the spring and all they managed to recruit was 130 for the fall 2006 conference. That means each rep averaged 0.26 reps/sales a piece. That is far from the more than 14 recruits/10 grand sales each rep needs to make even close to 100 grand they were told they "must be expecting to make" the first year. That means there can be no more than 430 total 10 grand sales. Those 630 reps now need (630 x 14) 8820 reps/sales in 2007 to make the 100 grand promised. Those 8820 reps will need 123,480 sales...1,728,720...24,202,080....338,829,120...4, 743,607,680.....

Gee, Jacko with you approaching the million mark in earnings I guess the spring 2007 conference will be very powerful for you. You and Timmy boy are scammers out to empty the pockets of innocent folks. You are hardly tools of the Lord. The majority of the sales in this 2-up are going right to you devious people who are too spineless and gutless to come on here and honestly discuss this bum venture. I am sure the Attorney General's office will shortly be seeing to it that you publish an honest earnings disclosure to provide to your reps.

The Election will soon be over and Greg Abbot will soon have more time to focus his troops on scams like Advantage Confernces.

I voted for Greg Abbott. I think he just has his hands fulll dealing with all the sexual predators and might not have time to go after scams like Advantage Conferences.

Our Newspaper writer CraigM article about Advantage Conferences should be coming out in the next two weeks. Craig says he got to spend a few hours at the Conference a few weeks ago.

I guess the Conference was not so good that he could not leave.

We will be looking forward to your article Craig. Hopefully it will be as funny as Tailpipes..

Uh Einstein, I mean Wish-

I believe the word you were searching for was involved..
no "e" genius.

Now, don't get your unbathed body into a lather over this, it can happen to anyone with a fifth grade education. I see it all the time in the rural school systems.

I do not doubt for a moment you have a j-o-b (Journey Of the Broke).
I hire slaves like you everyday (I prefer ones that can spell though).

Now, practice your spelling Wishy and tomorrow we'll work on three syllable words.
Hang in there.

Re: Advantage Conferences BS (Merged)

Iluvscams,

Listen, if you get off on correcting peoples spelling I suggest you get a job teaching 2nd grade or something. Most people don't care about spelling on chat boards. They are more concerned about content.

The great thing about scam.com is that you don't have a clue who I am.

You don't have a clue if I was telling the truth or not...

For all you know I could be misspelling words purposely to mask who I am and were I work.

My time is more important to me then spelling words on this chat board correctly.

What is your motive for posting on this board? Are you involved with Advantage Conferences? Why don't you come clean Mr. know it all.

Why don't you come on here and argue something more meaningful then spelling. As your comments are pretty childish.

PS. I actually own my business as well. However, I don't refer to my employees as slaves. I refer to them as friends and I beleive that is what has made me so succesfull. And yes, my Secretary types all of my letters and does all my paperwork for me.

My wife only works because she wants to and is doing something she is passionate about.

What ever man, you have no clue yourself.
Advocate for Entrepreneurs? Do you honestly think participating in a MLM is owning your own business? You are selling a product for another company. They don't even count you as a employee. You are contract labor/ independent rep! No Insurance, no benifits or anything..
You don't even have to register a DBA with the county. The Government does not even count it as a business.

You got one thing right. Participating in a MLM is a RISK!

Company may face AG action

Health supplement firm Mannatech declines to address allegations

10:35 PM CDT on Friday, October 27, 2006

By KAREN ROBINSON-JACOBS / The Dallas Morning News

The Texas attorney general's office is considering legal action against nutritional supplement maker Mannatech Inc. over claims the Coppell company allegedly has made about the health benefits of some products.

Mannatech has been under investigation since July 2005 by the Consumer Protection and Public Health Division for possible violation of the state's deceptive trade practices act, according to a memo from the attorney general's office.

"The likelihood of litigation filed by the attorney general's office exists," agency spokesman Tom Kelley said Friday.

Mannatech executives didn't respond to telephone and e-mail messages for comment. A woman who answered the phone in the chief financial officer's office said the company hadn't been notified of the investigation.

"We don't have anything to comment on," she said, declining to give her full name. "It's not our policy to comment on things that are not factual."

News of the potential legal trouble, first reported Friday morning on the MarketWatch.com Web site, sent Mannatech shares swooning. The stock lost $2.96, or 16.54 percent, to close at $14.94.

Mannatech is a "global wellness solutions company," according to its Web site, a "pioneer and world leader in the field of glyconutritionals," supplements made from "healthy sugars." It also markets skin care products.

Mannatech products are sold largely through a network of independent distributors, who help the company cash in on the booming market for nutritional supplements.

U.S. retail sales in the sector are expected to approach $5 billion this year, according to Packaged Facts, a division of MarketResearch.com.

Mannatech sales have more than doubled in the past several years, going from $128.7 million in 2001, to $389.4 million in 2005, according to a regulatory filing.

But "Mannatech has made unproven health claims about its products, such as the ability to cure or treat cancer and numerous other ailments," according to the memo from the attorney general's office.

"The claims being made are not approved by the Food and Drug Administration, making the claims potentially in violation of both state and federal law," the memo said. "There is also a concern that Mannatech does not disclose certain health risks associated with its products." The Texas Department of State Health Services has contacted the attorney general's office "with similar concerns" about the company "and referred the matter to ... [the attorney general] for investigation and possible litigation," the memo said.

Doug McBride, a health services spokesman, confirmed that the department referred the matter to the attorney general "within the last couple of weeks," for "possible violation of the Texas Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act."

He declined to detail specific allegations. "When we refer something to the attorney general's office, we're not inclined to do anything that would jeopardize the investigation," he said.

The memo from the attorney general's office was written by public information coordinator Karen Rabon in response to a Freedom of Information Act request filed by a short seller. Such investors seek to profit when a company's stock price drops.

The memo disclosed the existence of the investigation in order to justify not providing the investor with other information.

The attorney general's office received the request on Oct. 3, and as of that date the investigation was continuing, the memo said. The attorney general "anticipated filing suit against Mannatech for those alleged violations," the memo said.

Mannatech, founded in 1994, has run into legal trouble before over claims about its products.

In 2005, Mannatech faced three class-action lawsuits in which shareholders accused the company of "knowingly allowing independent contractors to recklessly misrepresent the efficacy of our products," the company said in its regulatory filing. The suits, which have been combined, were filed in federal court in New Mexico.

Three individual suits filed in North Texas late last year and early this year made similar allegations.

"We believe we have retained experienced securities litigation counsel to vigorously defend us and our officers and directors," the company said in the filing.

iluvscams,

You are such a twit, my boy. Here is the latest scoop on one of your favorite ventures. It is just your speed. Dishonest people should feel right at home there.

Now, why are you so ardently defending Advantage Conferences? You, like all the wonders in my fan club, can't point out any misrepresentation or exaggeration. You have come completely bereft of facts. Unlike you, Wish and I have no agenda other than seeing others have all they need to make an informed decision. We are not selling or promoting anything but the facts and truth. You scammers obviously can't share any facts about your fraudulent scheme as the truth would send all the recruits running.

There were 500 reps in the spring and all they managed to recruit was 130 for the fall 2006 conference. That means each rep averaged 0.26 reps/sales a piece. That is far from the more than 14 recruits/10 grand sales each rep needs to make even close to 100 grand they were told they "must be expecting to make" the first year. That means there can be no more than 430 total 10 grand sales. Those 630 reps now need (630 x 14) 8820 reps/sales in 2007 to make the 100 grand promised. Those 8820 reps will need 123,480 sales...1,728,720...24,202,080....338,829,120...4, 743,607,680.....

Since you think you are so brilliant why don't you challenge my calculations! Ask your little scamming friends Wacko Jacko and Timmy boy why it is they don't honestly disclose the actual earnings tables for their reps. No ther real jobs hide the facts from their employees. And yes, hubby and I have a very nice income that doesn't involve scamming any good Christian folks.

Alright, we got ourselves a party.
Let's see who has joined my class since I last taught:

Soapboxslob
Septic Ass Al
Unlucky (imagine that) 666

O.K. morons here we go.

Slob, you first
Do you mind if I just call you slob?
It takes way too long to type your stupid screen name. Thank you.

Slob-
You did some research on Manatech.
Congratulations. Next, do research on Microsoft, Dell, Intel, United Airlines and Ford Motor Company.
See if you find any negative information online.
Enough said. You're an idiot.

Secondly Slob,
Nice calculations. I could've saved you alot of time.
9 out of ten businesses fail in the first five years. Why?
Because dolts like you think they can get rich without any work.
Back to your trailer Slob.

Next we'll take Septic Ass errr...Al-
"My drips are fine, how are your drips?"
You too my friend have hit the low grade whiskey a bit too much.
I would have overlooked your misspeling of intellectual once, but twice is unforgivable.
You are no doubt a 9-5er punching a clock blaming his boss for everything from your bad back to your bad teeth.
You're a loser.

Next-
Unlucky 666
There's something called the law of attraction.
Being Unlucky 36 will attract all the other pond scum in this forum, but unfortunately not anyone worth a s*it.
Your quote Unlucky:
"Your post is about as equivalent of a 13 year old" .....What the hell are you trying to say dumbass??
Put a sentence together that makes sense.

Now I'll be bidding a fond farewell to all you a**holes. I came in had a little fun, proved my point why failures fail and now I must leave you mediocre malcontents to wallow in your self made sess pool.

Fear not though, there will be plenty of your kind to comiserate (look it up) with - scum.com was made for losers - and losers will inhabit it forever.

Have a great weekend.

Be sure you get paid overtime by the boss.

Iluvscams,

I didn't think you would get it you moron. Look how you spelled intellect in your original post.
You also misspelled misspelling in your response, that's rich. You also posted "your drips" when I am assuming you meant "you drips".

You are hilarious, keep up the good work. This is without a doubt the best thread on this site.
Come on back iluvscams, I haven't had this good a laugh in a while. Thanks buddy, you rock!

sess pool, you slay me! comiserate (look it up), stop you're killing me!!!!

Stop it man, I'm going to piss myself!!!! Read the sentence you constructed above a few times. It may not sink in but I'm not sure that's English. And then you say "Put a sentence together that makes sense."

You're making this stuff up, right? You are the best. If this MLM stuff doesn't work out for you, you should seriously consider comedy. You're a natural.

Maybe the Mentally Challenged MLM Guy, work with me on this. We could come up with a pretty good name for you.

You rule!!!!!!

Too bad you're leaving so quick. The fun was just beginning. Is this how you run your scam? When the going gets tough, you run? :rolleyes: Your company (scam) won't last. And your quote from earlier: You hire slaves? HAHA! Hopefully they will sue you or kick your ass, or better yet, scam you :D . I would like you to meet a scambuster that punishes scammers like you. Take a look.

Iluvtobean@$$,

I can't find the trailer anywhere. I live right down the street from the country club. Hubby has a very nice salary. We haven't had overtime since college, boy. Real businesses don't have the high failure rate of MLM and do not have to blatantly lie to folks like AC has to get employees.

Again, AC said one must be expecting to make 100 grand or more the first year, so why is it only Wacko Jacko (the lying scum that is afraid to spar with me any longer on here), Timmy Boy and a few others are making money while almost all the reps lose all the thousands they sink in this scam?????

Run, coward run, but this deal is going down and I will be here to see the Titanic sink! I have worked very hard to expose this scam and I am pleased I have the chance to use my talents to save people from the likes of you! I am interested in serving the public and not worried about getting paid for it.

I know Tim Darnell has a high school aged son.. Could Iluvscams be him?

I tried to keep my cool, I did not want to stoop to his level..

If he is Tim Darnells kid, I can understand why he would be on the attack.
I too would freak out if I felt my father could go to prison.
